Description:

Told in diary form by an irresistible heroine, this “heartfelt, bittersweet, and ever-so-clever coming-of-age fantasy” (School Library Journal, starred review) named one of Publishers Weekly’s Best Books of the Year from the New York Times bestselling author of the May Bird trilogy sparkles with science, myth, magic, and the strange beauty of the everyday marvels we sometimes forget to notice. Spirited, restless Gracie Lockwood has lived in Cliffden, Maine, her whole life. She's a typical girl in an atypical world: one where sasquatches helped to win the Civil War, where dragons glide over Route 1 on their way south for the winter (sometimes burning down a T.J. Maxx or an Applebee's along the way), where giants hide in caves near LA and mermaids hunt along the beaches, and where Dark Clouds come for people when they die. To Gracie it's all pretty ho-hum... until a Cloud comes looking for her little brother Sam, turning her small-town life upside down. Determined to protect Sam against all odds, her parents pack the family into a used Winnebago and set out on an epic search for a safe place that most people say doesn't exist: The Extraordinary World. It's rumored to lie at the ends of the earth, and no one has ever made it there and lived to tell the tale. To reach it, the Lockwoods will have to learn to believe in each other—and to trust that the world holds more possibilities than they've ever imagined.

Gracie lives in a world similar to our own but with important differences. In her universe the world is flat and has an edge, the Civil War ended in three months because sasquatches from the Smoky Mtns. joined the northern armies. When a person or pet dies, a dark cloud hovers about for a while before taking them away. Students take tunnels to school to avoid dragons during their migration season. Unicorns are endangered and the US, outside a few urban centers, is largely a wilderness because of the many hostile creatures that populate it. When a dark cloud begins to approach their house, the Lockwood family -- Gracie, her absent-minded father, musical mother, obnoxious older sister and sickly little brother Sam -- fears Sam is in danger and embark on a dangerous trek across the country, hoping the legends are true -- that if they can get far enough south, past the realm of the Great Kraken, they'll be able to reach the Extraordinary World -- a round planet where monsters don't exist and technology is common. This story is well paced and interesting, and explores family relationships. Gracie, writing in her diary, is an entertaining narrator, but there is the usual awkwardness one finds in epistolary novels. Otherwise the book is quite charming and a fun read for middle schoolers (or adults who've never quite grown up :-)
